Course Description: Management is a science that studies the general laws of management activities. Management activities are always carried out in a certain context, and context changes will inevitably bring about changes of management content, activity focus and organizational form. Therefore, the management theory that studies the general laws of management activities will inevitably develop with the change of the background of the times. The extensive application and development of the Internet are the main features of the current era. With the advent of the Internet era, as the general object of management research, the business activities and management of enterprises are undergoing profound changes. Management is a comprehensive interdisciplinary subject, which systematically studies the basic laws and general methods of management activities. Management comes into being to meet the needs of modern socialized mass production. Its main purpose is to study how to improve the level of productivity through reasonable organization and allocation of human, financial, material, and other factors under the existing conditions. According to the logical sequence of management activities, this course describes the four functions of management, such as planning, organizing, leading, and controlling.
